

Inf - Beta and OEM software policy - Infringement

<h2>GUIDE.SUMMARY

What is the policy?

 Beta software including beta keys, cards or access codes are not allowed OEM, bundled or recovery software listed on the site must follow these rules: The listing must include the original hardware, such as the motherboard or hard drive Utility software must include the peripheral device, such as a printer Why does eBay have this policy? This policy helps our members to abide by important government regulations.

</h2><h2>GUIDE.TALKING_POINTS Seller created software If you're the manufacturer of beta software and would like to sell either your software or access codes to your software on the site, please make sure that you make it clear in your listing that you are the manufacturer. About this policy Beta versions of software and access codes for this type of software can't be sold on eBay.

Manufacturer gave permission to sell software We understand that there are instances when a seller has been given permission to sell OEM software without hardware. We still ask that our sellers abide by eBay's OEM policy and only list OEM software with hardware. </h2>
