

Listing durations and timings

The length of time you can list for depends on the listing format you choose: Listing duration options

- Auction-style format – 1, 3, 5, 7, and 10 days. Unsold items may be automatically relisted
- Fixed price format – Good 'Til Canceled. This means that the item will be relisted every month until it's sold or until you end the listing

To create a 1-day listing, you need to have a feedback score of at least 10. If you don't meet this requirement, you won't see the 1-day option.

How to select a listing duration

To set the listing duration for an auction-style listing in the quick listing tool:

- At the bottom of the listing form, select Change beside your current listing preferences.
- Check the Enable more options box and hit Save.
- In the Pricing section, select Change.
- Ensure the Auction starting bid box is checked, and then select More options.
- From the Auction Duration dropdown, choose your preferred listing duration.
- Fill in the rest of your listing, then select List item.

To choose a listing duration using the advanced listing tool:

- Go to the Pricing section.
- Select the number of days from the Auction duration dropdown.

Tip When selecting a 1- or 3-day duration, you may see a message advising that, if your item doesn't sell, we'll relist it for you for free as a 7-day auction. See our article on relisting items for more information.

Good 'Til Canceled Listings

When you list an item as Good 'Til Canceled, it will relist every month on the same day until it's sold. For example, if you list your item on the 1st of May, it will relist on the 1st of June. If you list your item on the 29th, 30th, or 31st of a month, the duration will be adjusted if the following month is shorter, but will revert to the original day for longer months. For example, if you list an item on the 31st of May, it will relist on the 30th of June, and then again on the 31st of August and so on.

Scheduling listings

You can schedule listings to start on a day and time you choose, up to 3 weeks in advance, allowing you to create your listings at your convenience and control the time they start and end.

To schedule your listing in the quick listing tool:

- Go to the Pricing section of the listing tool.
- Select Schedule your listing's start time. (If you don't see this option, select More options first.)
- Set a start date and time.

To schedule your listing in the advanced listing tool:

- Go to the Pricing section.
- Set Schedule your listing to on. (If you do not see this option, select See all options and set Scheduling to on first.)
- Set a start date and time.

You can view your scheduled items - opens in new window or tab in My eBay. To reschedule or cancel a scheduled listing:

- Go to your scheduled items - opens in new window or tab.
- Choose the listing you want to change.
- Select Reschedule to change the date and time or Delete to cancel the listing.

Tip Listing times on eBay.com are shown in Pacific time. You can view eBay's official time - opens in new window or tab and a US time zone map to calculate the time in your area.

Listing times

Listings end in whole-day increments from the listing's start time, so if you submit your listing at 1:14 p.m. on Sunday and select a 3-day listing, it will end at exactly 1:14 p.m. on Wednesday. Listings that run during a daylight-saving time change will still receive the full amount of the listing duration. For example, if you have a 1-day listing that starts at 1:00 p.m. on Saturday, and the daylight-saving time spring transition occurs that Saturday evening, the listing will end at 2:00 p.m. on Sunday.</h2>
