

eBay International Shipping program

<h2>eBay International Shipping is currently available for eligible US sellers only at this time.

We'll be expanding the program to more sellers soon.<h2 id="section1">How it works</h2>If you're eligible, you'll be opted into the program. eBay International

Shipping will become your default shipping option and we'll automatically add eBay

International Shipping to your current listings. You may need to manually update some listings to offer eBay International Shipping.We'll let you know when an item sells to an international buyer and provide you with the domestic shipping hub address. All you need to do is send your sold items to our domestic shipping hub, and we'll manage the international shipping and customs process for you.<h2 id="section2">Benefits of eBay International Shipping</h2>As well as making your items available to buyers in over 200 countries, there are several other benefits to

Shipping and tracking your items

When shipping your item to our domestic shipping hub, always add tracking details and include the reference number on the label to ensure it arrives safely. This is done automatically for you if you create the shipping label on eBay. If you don't use an eBay shipping label, add the tracking number yourself when you receive it from your preferred carrier, and include the reference number on the label. Once your item is received at our domestic shipping hub, we'll add international tracking so that you and your buyer can track the item's progress.

Items that couldn't be delivered may not be returned to you. To find out more about the terms and conditions, go to the eBay International Shipping program page in our Seller Center.

Shipping exclusions

If you've created exclusions to states, territories, countries or regions that you don't ship to, they'll still apply to eligible listings under the eBay International Shipping program. If you'd like us to override your shipping exclusions as part of eBay International Shipping, you'll need to update your shipping preferences.

id="section7">Fees and charges</h2>There's no extra charge to ship your items with eBay International Shipping and you won't be charged the international selling fee. As a seller, you'll receive the item price and the domestic shipping and handling amount directly from your buyer. To find out what other fees and selling costs may apply to you, see our article on selling fees.

The buyer will be charged US shipping costs that you've specified, as well as international shipping, handling, and other fees as determined by eBay. Import charges may be collected from the buyer on delivery, either through customs or directly by the carrier. These charges include any customs duties, taxes, brokerage, and other fees.</h2 id="section8">Opting out of eBay International Shipping</h2>You can opt out of eBay International Shipping at any time by updating your shipping preferences, or you can remove individual listings from the eBay International Shipping program. If you choose to opt-out, you'll be asked to provide a reason why.</h2>
