

International selling policy

Given the nature of eBay's global marketplace, your eBay listings may be viewed and purchased by, and shipped to, buyers around the world. Such listings may be shown on the same or a different site on which you listed the item. Sellers and buyers are responsible for complying with all laws and regulations applicable to the international sale, purchase, and shipment of items.

If your item sells, you will be bound by the User Agreement and policies, including any buyer protection policies, of the site on which the item is sold. If you do not want your item to be sold to buyers internationally, you can exclude countries or regions by updating your shipping settings.

1. User Agreements and policies of eBay sites

If you purchase an item, or your item is sold to a buyer, on an eBay site other than your site of registration, you agree to be subject to the User Agreement and policies of that other site, as well as laws and regulations applicable to that sale and the respective delivery:

purchasing your items</h2>Given the nature of eBay's global marketplace, eBay listings may be viewed and purchased by, and shipped to, buyers around the world. Such listings may be shown on the same or a different site on which the seller listed the item, based on the seller's shipping settings. If you do not want your item to be sold to buyers internationally, you can exclude countries or regions you don't want to ship to by adjusting your shipping settings. Buyers affected by your requirements may still see your listings, but they won't be able to bid on or buy your items.To modify international shipping options for all your listings, go to Shipping Preferences - opens in new window or tab and select the countries you wish to exclude.To select international shipping options for an individual listing, adjust your international shipping preferences as appropriate in the Shipping section of the listing form.If you use business policies, you can set up your shipping policies to exclude specific shipping locations. Those shipping locations will be excluded for all the listings that the shipping policy is applied to. Learn more about setting up

In any jurisdiction where eBay has an obligation to collect sales tax, or similar consumer taxes, on sales or purchases you make using eBay Services (for example, Goods and Services Tax (GST) in Australia, or Internet Sales Tax (IST) in certain states in the US), you agree that eBay may collect such taxes.<h2 id="section6">6. Buyer obligations: Customs fees and duties and delegation of authority</h2>Buyers are responsible for customs fees and duties on items shipped internationally in accordance with local laws and regulations. Whether these fees are due at the time of the purchase or on delivery of the item is determined by the shipping method that the seller offers or that the buyer chooses and local laws and regulations.If the buyer is making an international purchase from a US seller, and either the buyer or seller choose to ship the item using tab for eBay International Shipping ("eIS"), you'll be opted into the program automatically. eBay International Shipping will become your default international shipping option and we'll automatically add eBay International Shipping to your current listings. You may need to manually update some listings to offer eBay International Shipping. For more information on how to update your listings or opt out of eBay International Shipping at either the listing level or account level, see our Seller Center - opens in new window or tab page. If you're a buyer of an eBay International Shipping item, you may have an option, depending on local tax laws, to pay taxes and duties either at the time you purchase your item or when the item is delivered to you.
